This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Resolved, That the commissioners for the enlargement of the State House be authorized and required to furnish the apartments for the State Library with suitable alcoves, galleries, shelves, and other needful conveniences, under the direction of the librarian and trustees of said library; and on the completion of said apartments, the librarian and trustees be authorized to transfer and arrange therein, as they may deem best, all the books, maps, charts, and other things belonging to said library, and to employ such assistance as may be necessary for that purpose.

Resolved, That the librarian and trustees of the State Library be authorized to prepare and print a convenient catalogue of said library, with the most approved classification; and to employ clerical assistance necessary for that purpose; and the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, is hereby authorized to draw his warrant, from time to time, on the treasury, to defray the reasonable extra expense of such transfer, arrangement, and catalogue.

Resolved, That the trustees of the State Library be authorized, at their discretion, to recall, and restore to said library, any works or duplicate volumes deposited in other places under any former resolves, and not make such deposits hereafter.

PREFACE.

Under the authority given by the foregoing resolves this Catalogue has been prepared and printed. Its appearance has been delayed by the failure to complete and furnish the new library apartment, as early as was anticipated at the passage of the resolves. The removal and proper arrangement of the books was deemed important to insure accuracy and completeness in the catalogue. In its construction the prominent aim has been to provide, in accordance with the resolves, "a convenient catalogue," with almost exclusive reference to its daily use as a manual in the library. Facility and dispatch in ascertaining whether any desired work belongs to the library, is the great object to be secured in such a manual. Hence the order of works in the catalogue is alphabetical, which explains itself, and therefore obviates the necessity of frequent explanation by the librarian. There are also numerous cross references to authors and subjects to facilitate inquiry. When a part of any title-page is omitted, the omission is indicated by three small periods or dots. Yet the transcript of titles is sufficiently full and complete to answer the purpose of most inquirers. It therefore combines the advantages both of a full catalogue and of an index to it, thus obviating the necessity of a double reference.

This Catalogue has been prepared in general accordance with the rules adopted and published by the Smithsonian Library at Washington, when under the direction of Professor C. C. Jewett. The titles of the works are entered under the authors' names when these are known. Anonymous publications, whose authors could not be ascertained, are entered under the first word of their titles, which is not an article or preposition.

There are some exceptions to the preceding rule. Works published by any organized society are entered under the name of such society. Publications authorized by Congress are entered under the United States: publications of the several States and Territories of the Union are entered under the State or Territory by which they were issued; and collections and compilations of the laws of any State, though published by private individuals, are entered under such State.

State Reports of Judicial Decisions are entered under the State where the Courts pronouncing the decisions were held, and in all cases under the name of the reporters.

Collections of Biographical Notices have been analyzed for convenient reference, and the volume and page given where such notices may be found.

There is a separate catalogue of Plans and Profiles of Railroads and Canals; another of ordinary Maps and Charts, and still another of Medals.

Works in Foreign Languages are catalogued by themselves according to the method already indicated.

Appended is an alphabetical index of subjects, "with the most approved classification," presenting together and with brief titles all the works now in the library pertaining to each class of subjects, or belonging to the same department of knowledge.

STATE LIBRARY, June, 1858.

HISTORY OF THE STATE LIBRARY.

ORIGIN OF THE LIBRARY.

Its origin, or the preliminary action which led to it, may be traced back to a Resolve of February 16, 1811, a period of fifteen years before it was formally established by law. This Resolve provided, "that the secretary of the Commonwealth be directed to correspond with the secretary, or other proper officer of the several States in the Union, for the purpose of procuring a present and future annual exchange of statutes, for the use of the executive and legislative departments. And that the secretary be directed to forward three sets of the statutes of this Commonwealth already published, to each of the States which have not already received them, for the use of their respective governments; and also three sets of all the statutes which shall be hereafter published, to each of all the States in the Union, that shall agree to forward their statutes in return."

The results of this Resolve were much more extensive and important than was probably anticipated by the legislature that passed it. It was generally and favorably responded to by the other States. It led to that system of exchange which now exists between each individual State, and every other State in the Union. It led to the formation of a legislative library in this State, and, sooner or later, in all the other States. The reception of a large number of State publications, and their accumulation in the different offices and legislative halls of the State House, soon furnished a reason, or created a necessity for collecting and arranging them in one apartment, placing them under some proper management and care, and thus planting the germ of a future library. It was thus that the State library originated. To Massachusetts, therefore, may be ascribed the honor of a legislative Act, forty-seven years ago, which has resulted in a universal system of State exchanges in our country, in the formation of State librarest, and in the accumulation of a large and most valuable portion of the books now on the shelves of our library.

In accordance with these views, we find that in the House of Representatives, January 11, 1826, Messrs. Charles Train, of Framingham, David Sears, of Boston, and Norman Hickok, of Sheffield, were appointed a committee to inquire into the expediency of establishing a library for the use of the legislature, and, if expedient, where the same shall be kept, and under what regulations. Two weeks afterwards, the chairman, Mr. Train, reported Resolves for establishing a library of the general court, and providing for its safe keeping and management. These Resolves, assuming the form of an Act, passed both branches of the legislature with apparent unanimity, and were approved by the governor, March 3, 1826. The Act provided that all the books and maps belonging to the Commonwealth, with some exceptions, and then in any of the apartments of the State House, be collected and arranged in the Land Office, and placed under the care of the Land Agent; that there annually be appointed a joint standing committee of three persons, to be denominated the committee on the library, whose duty it should be to superintend it, to purchase such books, and make such regulations as they might deem expedient; that there be appropriated, annually, for ten years, the sum of $300, to procure such books, maps and charts, works of science and the arts, as may tend to illustrate the resources and means of internal improvement of the Commonwealth, or of the United States. The library was established just thirty years before it was transferred to its present accommodations, though materials for it had been collecting for a longer period. The provisions of the Act establishing it were re-enacted in 1836, except that the appropriation, instead of being annual for a limited period, was made annual without limitation of time. Revised Statutes, chapter 11, sections 9, 10, 11, 12.

FIRST COMMITTEE, AND THEIR REPORT.

The first committee on the Library, consisted of Messrs. James T. Austin, James Savage and Francis C. Gray, on the part of the Senate, and Messrs. L. M. Parker, of Charlestown, David Sears, of Boston, and Theophilus Parsons, of Taunton, of the House. This committee in the first report on the library, made to the legislature, June 7, 1826, stated that the entire expense of collecting the books and providing for their safe keeping, was $191.76, and that the Library was then ready for the use of the general court; also, that the Commonwealth annually received from the government of the United States, and in exchange from other States in the Union, many volumes of important interest in connection with the politics and history of the country, not commonly found in other public or private collections, and that these, with a judicious expenditure of the small annual fund, would enable the library to contain works of science and the arts, that could not fail to illustrate the resources and means of internal improvement, and make it useful to the members of the legislature and honorable to the Commonwealth.

FURTHER ACTION UPON DOMESTIC EXCHANGES.

It was further ordered, January 6, 1827, that the committee be instructed to inquire to what extent copies of the laws of the several States have been obtained in exchange for our own, agreeably to the Resolve of 1811, what deficiencies there were in the laws of said States, and what further provision was necessary for supplying such deficiencies and for preventing them in future. In consequence of this order, the secretary of this Commonwealth was requested to write to the secretaries of the several States, informing them what volumes of the laws of their respective States were wanting to complete the sets in the library, and requesting them, in the name of the committee, to supply the deficiencies, and to continue the series in future. The result of this effort was the receiving of ninety-seven volumes from twenty-one States, making the series of laws from some of the States complete, and from all the States nearly so.

Thus far legal provision had been made only for an exchange of statutes. But in 1844, a communication was received from the legislative librarian of South Carolina, together with resolves from that State proposing an exchange of Judicial Decisions, which were transmitted by the governor in a message to the Senate. The result was a Resolve, of March 11, 1844, directing the secretary of State to forward two copies of each volume of the Reports of Decisions of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, which shall hereafter be published, to each of the States in the Union, that shall agree to forward the Reports of such State in return. As this Resolve was not retrospective in its operation, it brought no accession of Law Reports of a previous date. Nearly all the Reports previously published and now in the library, have been procured by purchase. They are regularly received from every State in the Union, and form a valuable part of the library. By an additional Resolve of February 15, 1845, our senators and representatives in Congress, were requested to urge the propriety of providing for the publication and distribution of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, among the judicial tribunals of the States, their executive officers and public libraries. A step still further towards perfecting the system, was taken by the last Resolve upon the subject of exchanges, May 11, 1853, authorizing the secretary of State to transmit, at the discretion and on the requisition of the trustees of the State library, copies of our laws, law reports, and other public documents, in exchange for similar works, and without limitation as to the date of publication.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES.

Important additions have been made by means of literary and scientific exchanges with foreign nations. A system of international exchanges, originated and conducted by M. A. Vattemare of Paris, having been commended with great zeal and enthusiasm to the consideration of members of the legislature and others, it was resolved, February 27, 1845: "That the secretary of the Commonwealth, under the direction of the governor, be authorized to exchange copies of the State Map, not exceeding twenty in number, and bound copies of the laws and legislative documents of the Commonwealth, for the current year, not exceeding fifty volumes each, for books and other works of science and art from foreign countries, to be deposited in the library of the general court." The governor was also authorized to appoint an agent in Paris to transmit books in pursuance of the object of the Resolve, and the sum expended was not to exceed $300. Similar appropriations were made February 12, 1846, and April 14, 1847, to defray the expenses of Mr. Vattemare, as agent; and by a Resolve of May 2, 1849, twenty volumes of Law Reports were to be furnished in addition to the laws and documents before granted, and the sum of $300 was made an annual and permanent appropriation. In the following year, May 2, 1850, Resolves were passed, expressing thanks to Mr. Vattemare for his agency, and confidence in the system.

The whole number of volumes received from this source, and now in the library, is 1,252. Some of the works are quite valuable, especially the statistical works, reports of commissions relating to public improvements, and those emanating from the different bureaus of the French government. Similar works, it is presumed, could readily be obtained hereafter, on application by an accredited agent of the State, for a public purpose and in exchange for State publications. There are other works, costly, beautiful, and even magnificent, containing delineations and engravings of historic interest and great artistic excellence, not wholly appropriate to the library, which was established for reference and consultation, for purposes of legislation and business, in short, for a working library, and not to attract the public for purposes of amusement, or to gratify a taste for the fine arts. There are also in this collection some works of little or no practical value. International exchanges through Mr. Vattemare continued for eleven years, and the amount appropriated to sustain them, together with incidental expenses, is $3,318, besides the cost of books granted, amounting to $1,800, making an aggregate of $5,118. Moreover, the books received were mostly in paper covers, and it was necessary for their preservation to bind them, and often at large expense. On their recent removal, before placing them in the alcoves designed for them, those of most value remaining unbound were sent to the bindery and returned with a bill of charges amounting to several hundred dollars. This additional cost rendered the books obtained from this source exceedingly expensive. Indeed, more has been sometimes paid for suitably binding rare and beautiful volumes, than would have been deemed wise to pay for the volumes themselves already bound, as the Library was in urgent need of books more generally useful, and as the means at its disposal were extremely limited. A partial substitute for this system of exchanges was provided by a Resolve of May 11, 1853, authorizing the secretary of the Commonwealth, on the requisition of the trustees, to effect exchanges with foreign states in such manner as they may deem expedient. As yet, little has been added to the library under the operation of this Resolve, but it opens the way for procuring, by exchange, such works, and only such as are adapted to the object and wants of the library. It was doubtless from considerations like these that the legislature was induced to terminate the system of international exchanges through Mr. Vattemare, by a Resolve passed May 18, 1855.

AUDUBON'S ORNITHOLOGY.

Alexander H. Everett, of Boston, introduced into the Senate of 1832 an Order, instructing the committee on the library to consider the expediency of purchasing for the library, a copy of the "Birds of America," by John James Audubon, of Louisiana. The measure encountered a strong opposition, and after an earnest and eloquent debate for several days, a Resolve was passed, March 22, 1833, authorizing the committee, if they deemed it expedient, to purchase the work at an expense not exceeding eight hundred dollars. Subsequent expenditures were authorized for its preservation, March 23, 1835, and, including binding and repairs, its cost to the State has exceeded one thousand dollars.

DEPOSIT OF DUPLICATES.

In ten years from the establishment of the Library, when it contained over 3,000 volumes, a Resolve was passed, March 31, 1836, repealing a Resolve passed March 2, 1835, for a similar end, and providing that in all cases in which the secretary of the Commonwealth, or the librarian of the legislature then had or should afterwards receive for public use, two or more copies of any statutes, books of common law, or public documents of the United States, or of any other States, they should forthwith deposit one of the said copies in the Law Library of Harvard University, to be there kept, subject to the order of the legislature. There were deposited in that institution, under this Resolve, 1,155 volumes, which have been recalled by the trustees and restored to the library, agreeably to a Resolve of April 29, 1854, there being ample room for them in the new library room, and a frequent necessity for the use of duplicates, to meet the wants of visitors and of the legislature.

CHANGE OF DIRECTION.

The Act establishing the library provided for the appointment of a joint standing committee of both houses, which was to have the sole power under the legislature of directing its management, and making additions by purchase. This was the general mode of superintending and enlarging the library for a quarter of a century. As might have been expected, there were grave objections to the continuance of this mode of administration after the library had become large and the duties onerous. In the First Annual Report of the librarian to the legislature required by law, presented in 1850, under an Act of April 28, 1849, it was suggested, "that in order to secure unity and completeness of character, it was important that those intrusted with the responsible control of the library, should have a settled policy, and be governed by similar views from year to year." Such a policy and harmony of views were not to be looked for in a board of control annually changing, and often appointed without a knowledge of their qualifications. It was to have been presumed that a board so constituted and holding office for so brief a period, would not be duly prepared for a labor so strictly professional as the proper care and supervision of a large library so special in its character. It was equally to have been presumed that different sets of managers, annually succeeding each other, would have different plans in respect to management, and different preferences in respect to the class of books to be purchased. As, therefore, a legislative committee was wholly or in part changed with each successive legislature, it was a natural result that the library experienced, to some extent, the disadvantages incident to the want of a uniform administration. To guard against such results, and to secure a competent direction, the Act of April 9, 1850, provided that the State library be placed under the management and control of three trustees, to be appointed by the governor and council, to hold office for three years, and to exercise all the powers and perform all the duties formerly exercised and performed by the joint standing committee of the legislature. The first board of trustees was appointed June 6, 1850, and consisted of Joel Giles and Charles Sumner, of Boston, and George Livermore, of Cambridge. Mr. Sumner, on resigning the trust in 1851, was succeeded by Henry T. Parker, of Boston, who, upon leaving the country, resigned his trust in 1855, and was succeeded by Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, who, by reappointment, now fills the place of Mr. Giles, who served for two terms as chairman. Mr. Livermore, by two reappointments, continues in office, and James A. Dix, of Boston, succeeds Mr. Shurtleff, who now occupies the place of the former chairman. All the gentlemen who have served as trustees have performed the duties of their trust without pecuniary compensation.

LIBRARIANS.

By the Act instituting the library it was placed under the care of the Land Agent, John W. Coffin, who, for a period of twenty-three years, or until June 1, 1849, was the librarian, and discharged his duties as such, in a manner highly creditable to himself and satisfactory to the legislature. At this time, it had increased to 7,346 volumes, and the labor of managing it had much increased also, while the duties of the Land Office were quite sufficient for one person to perform. At the same time, the Secretary of the Board of Education was without an office in the State House, where it was desirable that he should be located, as he was a State officer charged with the preparation of State documents, and connected by official business with various departments of the government. For these reasons, an Act was passed April 28, 1849, constituting the "Secretary of the Board of Education librarian of the State library, with power to appoint an assistant, who shall also act, when necessary, as clerk of the board;" and making it the duty of the librarian "to report to the legislature, annually, the receipts and expenditures on account of the library, with a list of all books, maps and charts, acquired since the last report, specifying those obtained by purchase, exchange or donation; and those, if any, which have been lost, or are missing; and make such suggestions in relation to the library as may lead to its improvement." Under this Act, Rev. Barnas Sears, D. D., the Secretary of the Board of Education, became librarian, and filled the office for six years, when he was succeeded by the present incumbent in 1855.

SPECIAL CHARACTER AND OBJECT.

As observed in the First Annual Report, the only enactment intimating the particular character of the works to constitute the State library, is found in the Act by which it was instituted. An annual appropriation was made "to procure such books, manuscripts and charts, works of science and the arts, as tend to illustrate the resources and means of internal improvement of this Commonwealth, and of the United States." The additions made by the successive library committees, with the approval of the general court, and the legal provisions for procuring the statutes, legislative documents, and law reports of the Federal and State governments, sufficiently indicate a purpose to render the library special in its character, or primarily adapted to the wants and convenience of the general court, and of the various officers and agents of the State government. As large general libraries exist in the immediate vicinity, embracing a wide range of English and classical literature and current publications for popular reading, comparatively little would be gained for the public benefit by forming another library of similar character. Therefore, in making additions by purchase, reference has been had almost exclusively to the specific object for which this library was established. The principle of division of labor, if observed by managers of library associations, may be as useful in this as in many other of its applications. Obviously, more important public ends are gained, and even the private convenience of many is more effectually subserved, by augmenting and perfecting a library, distinct in character and complete in kind, though limited in size, than by gathering a much larger number of books of a popular and miscellaneous character, of less value and more easy of access. In the judgment of the trustees and librarian, special efforts should be made to procure works of reference most useful to legislators and public officers, such as the best legal, political, historical, statistical, economic and scientific works, which tend to illustrate the history, exhibit the resources, direct the labor and capital, and perfect the legislation of our State and country. It should be, as it has been, a distinct object to gather and preserve the elements of future history, as the history of towns and counties, and the biographies of prominent public men. And if the history of a State is to be found in her laws, it should be a primary purpose to procure the reported judicial decisions, and, especially, complete collections of the statute laws of the several States, of the United States, and of Great Britain.

VALUE AND USEFULNESS.

The importance of the State library is not to be estimated by the expenditures in its behalf. It has become an important trust. It now contains about 13,000 books, besides maps and charts. The additions to it by donations, by exchanges, and from the archives of the Commonwealth, are of great value. As a mere pecuniary interest, it is of sufficient magnitude to justify a liberal expenditure for its preservation, care, and improvement. An ordinary prudence and foresight would suggest that such an amount of State property should be in a safe depository, and under a competent and systematic direction.

The chief value of the library, judging from the daily calls upon it for consultation, consists in its extensive collection of statute laws and American law reports, especially the former. In no respect is it more valuable, either for the legislature, or for professional men, or for the public. It now contains, probably, the most complete collection of the statutes of the several States and of State publications to be found in this country. No individual now thinks of collecting into a private library, the continuous and increasing legislation of over thirty States. No other public institution has done, or is likely to do, this work. The State library, through the State department, is the only agency in the Commonwealth that can be expected to accomplish it successfully.

The utility, and even the necessity, of having a complete body of the statutes of all the States and of the United States, easily accessible to business and professional men from all parts of the Commonwealth, can readily be seen. The business relations of the people of this State, through commerce, mercantile pursuits, manufactures and emigration, extend to all the States in the Union. The contracts resulting from business, the security and collection of debts, the transfer of property, the settlement of estates, &c., &c., are governed by the statutes of the State where one of the parties resides, or where the property is found. To ascertain the provision of these local statutes, our citizens can have recourse only to the State library. The number of consultations shows its importance to the public convenience. Merchants, lawyers, heirs at law, legatees, pensioners, claimants of every kind, applicants for divorce, authors preparing historical and legal works, and persons in official stations, come from various parts of the Commonwealth, and even from other States, to examine the legislation of the several States and the varied legal and documentary treasures upon our shelves. Thus, the library not only furnishes works of reference for the use of the legislature, but is an instrument of great and increasing public usefulness.

INCREASE AND SIZE.

The number of books collected in the Land Office, under the Act creating the library, and constituting it at the close of the first year (1826) of its existence, cannot be ascertained from the records. In ten years (1836) it had increased to the number of 3,216 volumes; in twenty years, 5,764 volumes; in thirty years, or at the close of 1856, 12,000 volumes.

ADDITIONAL ROOM.

As early as February 28, 1844, it was ordered, on motion of Mr. Cushing, of Boston, that the committee on public buildings be directed to inquire into the expediency of enlarging the accommodations for the library. At that time it numbered 5,733 volumes, and was contained in the room used as the Land Office. By a Resolve of March 15, 1844, the committee on the library was authorized to ascertain in what way and manner enlarged accommodations for the library may be made, within the State House or otherwise, with the estimated expense of the same. After an interval of one year, a Resolve of March 27, 1846, directed the sergeant-at-arms to cause a suitable room to be prepared in the basement story, immediately under the library and treasurer's office, for the use of the library under the supervision of a committee; and the sum of $1,200 was appropriated for the purpose. An additional room was thus provided, at an expense of about $2,500. The two rooms now containing the library were soon crowded from the additions annually made, and proving wholly unsuitable from the dampness of the lower room, and the exposure of both rooms to fire, the attention of the legislature was called in 1851 to the necessity of providing more ample and suitable accommodations in a fire-proof apartment.

ENLARGEMENT OF THE STATE HOUSE.

The necessity of making further provision for the library was so manifest and urgent, that May 10, 1851, on motion of a member of the library committee, Mr. Parker, of Shirley, it was ordered, "that the committee on public buildings be instructed to ascertain what additional rooms can be provided for the accommodation of the library and committees of the legislature, and at what expense the same can be obtained." This committee submitted a report, May 13, 1851, with plans and estimates, and an accompanying Resolve. House Document, No. 192, 1851. The accompanying Resolve was referred to the next general court.

In 1852 the librarian made the following communication to the legislature, that, "in consequence of the accumulation of the Massachusetts State Documents, and the documents of other States, procured by exchange, and of books purchased annually by the trustees, the small apartments appropriated for the use of the library are entirely insufficient for receiving the books with any arrangement of them upon shelves convenient for reference. In the basement story there is so much moisture, that, with all the care that can be exercised by means of fires in the winter, and the opening both the windows and cases in the summer, the books become damp and dingy, the covers often become mouldy, and the leaves of some are actually decaying. This is an evil for which there is no sure remedy, except by removal. The library being in a building not fire-proof, is of course liable to be destroyed by fire. That the loss in such an event would be irreparable, is evident to all." This communication was referred to the committee on the library; and, on their report, the subject was referred to a joint select committee, which reported a Resolve that was approved May 20, 1852: That a committee of three be appointed by the president of the Senate, and the speaker of the House of Representatives, to procure plans and estimates for a fire-proof building, to be erected in the rear of the State House, and report the same to the next legislature. This committee, at the next session, February 21, 1853, submitted a report of their doings, plans and estimates for the enlargement of the State House. They presented three different plans, and an Act of April 27, 1853, provided for the erection on the north side of the State House, of a fire-proof building to connect with the main edifice, in general conformity to a plan called No. 3, in the report of the committee appointed by authority of chapter 99, of Resolves of 1852; and the sum of $65,000 was appropriated for the purpose. Three commissioners were also to be appointed by the governor and council, with power to erect the building, and make any alterations in the plan that were approved by the executive. Commissioners were appointed May 25, 1853, and immediately entered upon the duties of their commission. The building was essentially completed near the close of 1855, and the cost of the enlargement merely, exclusive of furnishing and of alterations in the original building occasioned by the enlargement, was $220,686.88.

FURNISHING OF THE LIBRARY.

By the liberal appropriation of $3,000 by Resolve of April 15, 1856, the trustees have been able to furnish and fit for use the library room, in a manner suited to its imposing structure, its architectural beauty, and its design.

REMOVAL OF BOOKS.

The trustees and librarian were authorized, by a Resolve of April 29, 1854, to transfer to the new apartment and arrange, as they deemed best, all the books, maps, &c., belonging to the library, and employ the assistance necessary for the purpose. The transfer was delayed several months on account of the low temperature and continued dampness of the room. During the summer and autumn of 1856 the books and maps were removed, and arranged anew according to the most approved classification. All works of the same, or similar character as to subjects have been placed, as far as practicable, in the same alcove, or in immediate contiguity. This arrangement may continue till the space reserved for the accession of kindred works shall be occupied, when there can be a rearrangement, or this manner of classification can be discontinued.

APPROPRIATIONS.

It is noticeable, as a singular fact in the history of the library, and one not to have been expected in Massachusetts, so distinguished for its liberal patronage of the means and sources of knowledge, that the annual appropriation of $300 for the library continued the same from its establishment to May, 1857. While there was an increase of expenditure in every office and department of the State government, and progress in every thing, yet an appropriation which the library committee, in their first report to the legislature in 1826, called a "small sum," was precisely the amount appropriated for the State library in 1856, or after a lapse of thirty years. It should be stated, however, as a partial explanation, that for several years there was no room even for a temporary accommodation of additions by purchase.

There have also been some special appropriations for the purchase of books: $150, February 2, 1827, for the purchase of Ree's Encyclopædia; $800, March 22, 1833, for Audubon's "Birds of America;" $100, March 23, 1835, for the preservation of the "Birds of America;" and March 18, 1852, $1,000, for the purpose of supplying deficiencies and completing sets of important works. The total of special appropriations for additions to the library is $2,050.

The whole amount of appropriations expended for the increase of the library is about $17,000.

This amount does not include the cost of books given by the State in domestic and foreign exchanges, amounting to a large sum, not easily ascertained; nor does it include incidental expenses for binding, stationery, clerical assistance, furniture, bookcases, and fitting up the former library rooms, amounting to several thousand dollars; nor does it include any part of the very large expenditure for erecting and furnishing the new library hall, which cannot well be separated from the general cost of the additional structure. The salaries of the librarian and assistant-librarian have never been a charge upon the ordinary revenue of the State. As they are officially connected with the department of education, they receive their compensation from that portion of the school fund which is expended for educational purposes.

By Resolves of May 4, 1857, the annual sum of $2,000 was appropriated, in addition to the annual grant of $300, for the increase of the library, which appropriation, if continued, will enable the library to become a more effective instrument of public usefulness and worthy of the Commonwealth.
